CEF – convinced by history and the present reality – believes that the viability of our Catholic schools is largely dependent on the support and involvement of our priests. Our seminar will include workshops dealing with the following topics:

- Conciliar and Papal Teaching on Catholic Education
- The History of Catholic Education in the United States
- The Priest’s Presence in the School Community (Students, Faculty, Administration, Parents)
- The Priest as the Public Relations Man of the School
- Financial Concerns
- Models of Governance and Best Practices

(Graduate credit available from Seton Hall University)

Cardinal Sean O’Malley,
CEF board member, Archbishop of Boston

“The role of our beloved priests in our Catholic schools throughout the Archdiocese of New York is invaluable. Our children’s future success and relationship with our Church rests on the involvement and engagement of priests woven throughout the fabric of their daily lives in our schools. Since priests serve as the embodiment of a Gospel life, they are the concrete example and witness to a life of fidelity to Jesus and His Gospel. Priestly presence in our schools is inextricably linked to the culture and ethos of the Catholic identity of the Catholic school and its ultimate success.”
